

Emily Stanley

- B.S. in Biology at Yale University (1984)
- M.S. in Biology at Southwest Texas State University (1986)
- Ph.D. in Zoology at Arizona State University (1993)
- Post-Doc at University of Alabama
- Worked at Oklahoma State University as an assistant professor until 2004
- Currently a professor of limnology at University of Wisconsin-Madison
- Named a 2018 Ecological Society of America Fellow
- Studies freshwater ecosystems (limnology), human impacts on rivers and streams, and effects of dam removal

