DAN WEBB, PHYSICS '14

Sports Performance Consultant // U.S. Olympic Committee

Dan graduated from CC in 2014 with a physics major and statistics minor. Shortly after graduation, he started a one-year externship in the Competitive Analysis department at the United States Olympic Committee, where his project was to develop a computational method to rank all Team USA athletes against their international competition and find each athletes' odds of medaling at the Rio Olympics. After completion of that project, he was offered a full-time job and is now the Sport Performance Consultant on the Business Operations team at the USOC.

While at CC, Dan played on the basketball team and was voted captain his Junior and Senior years. He has remained involved with the CC community. Dan is an advocate of the CC - USOC relationship and is always available as a contact for CC students who are interested in the externship program or the Olympic Movement as a whole.
